

How attendance zones might work

Wake County school staff members created four possible zoning plans based on existing administrative structures. They include current high school zones, the districts of administrators who oversee certain areas of the county, transportation districts used by bus planners, and "map planning zones," which administrators use to decide where to build schools.

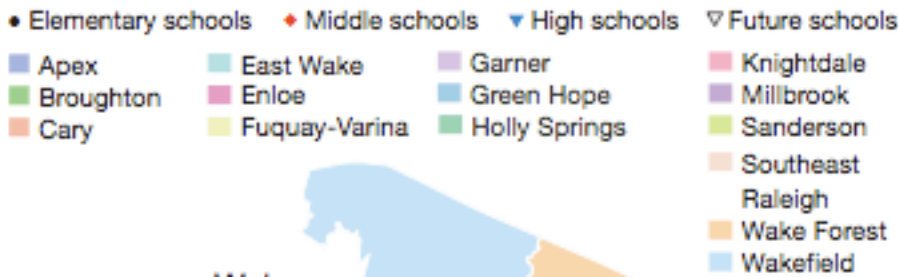

Current high school base zones

Area superintendent districts

Transportation districts

Map planning zones

